Planning ahead — aging in America

As people age, health care becomes a special concern for many, since a larger number of people will require more health care services, including those services related to long term care (LTC) needs. No one knows what the future holds, but what's certain is that building a plan for the long term and considering Guardian's Long Term Care rider now can help you make the most of years to come.<sup>1,2</sup>

Someone turning age 65 today has almost a 70% chance of needing some type of long term care services and support in their remaining years.<sup>3</sup>

70%

Approximately 35% of people reaching age 65 are expected to enter a nursing home at least once in their lifetime.<sup>3</sup>

35%

People use at-home or facility — provided long term care for an average of three years.<sup>3</sup>

Planning ahead

It's never too early to start planning for the future. Planning ahead can help you determine the type, and quality of care you want as you prepare financially. It can also help you explore the benefits of the LTC rider.

A Guardian life insurance policy with an LTC rider helps you address two needs with one product: financial protection and a way to help pay for long term care expenses.

No surprises

If you or your loved one experiences a long term care event, the financial burden can be great. All too often, family members must sacrifice time and resources to help care for a family member in need of long term care services. Knowing the costs associated with professional care today can help you better prepare for future unknowns.

How much long term care can cost<sup>3</sup>

According to www.longtermcare.gov, it costs $253 per day, on average, for a private room in a nursing home in the United States (in 2016). That's equivalent to:

$7,698 per month

$92,376 per year

As the general population ages and people live longer, these costs are projected to rise. From 2015 to 2055, the number of people aged 85 and older will almost triple, from over six million to over 18 million. This growth will lead to an increase in the number of people who'll require some type of long-term care service.<sup>4</sup>

Key questions to discuss with your family:

1

Will you need long term care?

2

How will your family take care of you?

3

Can you pay for your long term care needs with your own savings?

Meeting your long term care needs

With planning and careful consideration, you can prepare for the rising costs associated with long term care using riders, such as the LTC rider.

Traditionally, funding for long term care expenses may have come from a variety of sources, including:

- Personal resources, like pensions, 401(k)s, IRAs, annuities and bank accounts
- Medicare or Medicaid, although these programs weren't designed to cover long term expenses, so any available long term care benefits are extremely limited
- Traditional long term care insurance policies

While these financial strategies are certainly possible, they're not precise in helping determine how much to earmark for care, as many of your assets may already be designated for other purposes (such as retirement).

Medicare and Medicaid aren't designed for long term care and will only pay for certain aspects of care — with many rules, limits and restrictions. There's also continued uncertainty surrounding the benefits of both these programs in the future.

Traditional long term care insurance is designed to help fund long term care costs, and is a reliable way to supplement other sources. However, there are fewer choices in the marketplace today and individual policies can be costly. Plus, the return on the dollars spent for these premiums cannot be measured unless you'll absolutely need care.

An available option is a combination of life and long term care insurance, like with the Long Term Care rider on a whole life policy.

Whole life insurance helps to provide lifetime protection with three guarantees —guaranteed death benefit, a guaranteed level premium, and guaranteed cash value.<sup>5</sup> As the owner of a Guardian whole life insurance policy, you can also share in the success of the company overall, by receiving policy dividends,<sup>6</sup> which can potentially build the policy's cash value even more. The policy's cash value can be used in a variety of ways, including to pay or reduce future premiums, or, to take a loan.<sup>7,8,9</sup>

Guardian's Long Term Care rider — a noteworthy option

Guardian offers a Long Term Care rider as part of its life insurance product suite. For an additional premium, this rider allows you to accelerate a portion of the policy's death benefit to help cover the cost of long term care services during your lifetime.

The rider provides a flexible, economical alternative or supplement to other sources of funding. It can help relieve the financial strain many families experience when the need for long term care occurs.

LTC rider features

Guardian's Long Term Care rider allows you to use a portion of your whole life policy's death benefit to cover the cost of long term care services, providing you with extra flexibility as you plan for the future.

How does it work?

Access

When you apply for your Guardian whole life policy, you can choose to include the LTC rider for an additional premium. At that time, you'll specify the portion of the face amount that's available for acceleration (Basic LTC Pool). Keep in mind that each LTC payment you receive will reduce the death benefit by the same amount. (An example is shown on the next page.) You can select an amount up to 95% of the policy face amount, not to exceed $2,500,000.

In addition to the Basic LTC Pool, you can elect for your dividends to apply to the purchase of LTC Dividend Additions, thereby creating an Additional LTC Pool and death benefit coverage.<sup>6</sup> If you elect the Additional LTC Pool, these additions are available for acceleration under the rider. The Additional LTC Pool has two options available at issue, one which can extend the length of time you can receive monthly benefit payments and another that can increase the monthly benefit payment.

Flexibility

Once you qualify to receive benefits under the rider, (qualification requirements can be found on page 6 of this brochure) you can accelerate a part of your policy's face amount through monthly benefit payments. With our indemnity-style benefit, you decide how much money you'll take from the policy each month. The rider allows payments up to a monthly maximum equal to the lesser of:

- 2% or 4% of the Basic LTC Pool, selected at issue;
- 2 times the monthly IRS limit<sup>10</sup>

You can continue to receive monthly benefit payments, until the Total LTC Pool has been accelerated, as long as you meet the qualification requirements. You can choose to stop or change your payment amount at any time.

Protection

To help keep your death benefit and LTC benefits in place while you're receiving LTC rider benefits, Guardian will apply a premium credit that covers part or all of the base policy and LTC Rider premiums. The premium credit is based on the LTC Pool percentage elected at issue. If you elect a 95% LTC Pool, the premium credit will be sufficient to cover the entire base policy and LTC Rider charges.

Guardian's indemnity long term care benefit — simpler for you<sup>11</sup>

Because we want you to focus on getting better, Guardian's Long Term Care rider provides an indemnity-type benefit. That means you're not required to continually submit bills and receipts each month in order to receive monthly benefit payments, as is the case with reimbursement-style LTC coverage from other companies. This simplifies the process when requesting your benefits, so you can focus on your care — not your bills.

How it works

You may find yourself asking, "How does the LTC rider actually work?" The following example is designed to help you better understand the details, including:

- How much you can take from the policy when you're receiving monthly LTC benefits; and
- How monthly LTC payments affect the death benefit, and monthly cost for your life insurance policy.

1. The LTC Pool as a percentage of the death benefit

Let's assume the initial death benefit of your whole life policy is $1,000,000. If you've elected the maximum Basic LTC Pool, 95% of your policy's death benefit — or $950,000 — will be available for acceleration under the LTC Rider over the life of the policy. You will also choose between and 2% or 4% monthly benefit amount at issue.

If you choose to have your dividends applied to the purchase of LTC Dividend Additions, the Total LTC Pool may be bigger and grow over time.

2. Receiving monthly LTC benefits

When you need to use your LTC coverage, and start receiving monthly payments, if you've selected the 2% benefit you can accelerate a maximum monthly amount equal to the lesser of:

- 2% of the Basic LTC Pool — $19,000; or
- 2 times the monthly IRS limit<sup>10</sup> — $24,600

With an LTC Pool amount of $950,000, monthly payments can be as high as $19,000.

Monthly payments continue until you recover or when the entire LTC Pool amount has been exhausted. In this example, the Basic LTC Pool is sufficient to pay the maximum monthly amount for 50 months. With the Additional LTC Pool accumulated using policy dividends, the time period is extended or the monthly benefit can be higher, based on the option selected at issue.

While you're receiving LTC Rider benefits, Guardian will apply a premium credit based on the Basic LTC Pool percentage elected at issue. With a 95% Basic LTC Pool elected at the time of purchase, Guardian will waive 100% of the charges to cover the base policy death benefit and the cost of the LTC rider, protecting your life insurance plan.

3. How LTC payments affect your remaining coverage

Let's assume that after a full year on claim, you no longer need LTC payments. After 12 monthly payments of $19,000, the policy provided a total LTC benefit of $228,000. That leaves you with a remaining LTC benefit of $722,000. That amount is there should you need long term care again in the future.

Because each LTC payment you receive reduces the death benefit by the same amount, accelerating a total of $228,000 from the initial death benefit of $1,000,000, leaves you with a remaining death benefit of $772,000.

Frequently asked questions

Whether you're buying a whole life policy with the LTC rider for yourself, or to cover the life of a loved one, understanding the details of your policy's benefits is important. Making the right decisions means being informed, so the frequently asked questions below may help you learn more about this valuable coverage.

Can anyone get the LTC rider on their whole life policy?

You can have the rider added to your policy if you're between the ages of age 18 and 75 and in fairly good health (with a Table Rating of 4 or better underwriting class rating) at the time of policy issue.

What does the LTC rider do?

The rider accelerates a part of your policy's face amount through monthly LTC benefit payments. You can receive LTC rider payments when you either:

- Become chronically ill (i.e., unable to perform at least two out of six activities of daily living like bathing, continence, dressing, eating, toileting and transferring);

Or

- Are diagnosed with a severe cognitive impairment, like Alzheimer's disease.

When would I qualify to receive LTC benefits?

You'll be asked to provide a statement from your physician certifying that you meet the above definitions of chronic illness or cognitive impairment.

In addition, you must be receiving qualified long term care services under a physician's plan of care, either in a qualified facility, or at home by a qualified health care provider or family member.

Is there a waiting period to access the LTC benefit?

The insured must have received care for 90 days before being eligible to access the benefit. During this period, the insured won't receive monthly benefit payments.

These 90 days of services must be accumulated within a 24-month period from the date the insured starts receiving long term care services. If the insured receives at least three days of care in a given week, that will count as seven days toward satisfying the elimination period, which is standard practice for all LTC benefits.

Do I need to do anything else while I'm receiving LTC payments?

On an annual basis, you may be asked to recertify that you're still under a physician's care and qualify for long term care benefits.

What happens to my policy when I'm receiving LTC benefits?

Premiums

Guardian's LTC rider is designed with a premium credit.

- LTC rider premiums aren't due while you're receiving LTC payments.
- Guardian applies a premium credit based on the LTC Pool percentage elected at issue. However, other policy and rider premiums are due while you're receiving payments.

Example: For whole life policies with a 95% LTC Pool, Guardian applies a premium credit equal to the base policy and waiver rider premiums. Only other rider premiums are due.

For policies with an LTC Pool percentage lower than 95%, Guardian applies a prorated premium credit toward the base policy and waiver rider premiums. You pay the base policy premium only for the death benefit that's not available to be accelerated under the LTC rider. This can significantly reduce your out-of-pocket costs while you're on claim.

Death benefit

When you receive monthly benefit payments under the LTC rider, you're accelerating your life insurance death benefit. Each LTC payment you receive reduces your policy's death benefit by the same amount. Dividends, if applicable, are paid based on the adjusted death benefit.

Policy cash value

Accelerating your death benefit under the LTC rider causes a proportional reduction to: (1) the amount available for both loans and withdrawals; and (2) the cash surrender value of your policy.

Will the LTC rider provide benefits for care or services received outside of the United States?

If the initial plan of care and all renewal plan of care updates are provided by a health care practitioner licensed in the United States, long term care services received outside the United States would qualify you to receive LTC benefits.

Are there any coverage limitations or exclusions for Guardian's LTC rider?

As with most other carriers, Guardian puts certain limitations and exclusions in place regarding when a rider can be exercised, such as a pre-existing condition limitation. You should discuss these with your financial professional.

Guardian offers the stability to meet its obligations

No two companies offering whole life are alike. While whole life products may be similar in design, they differ with respect to features and performance. The policy's performance is linked to the life insurance company's overall results and the commitment to its policyholders.

A promise is only as good as the company that can honor it. The cash values contained in a whole life policy can be a source for increasing financial confidence for your family or your business. A life insurance policy is expected to perform and help fulfill goals many years into the future. Therefore, the long-term financial viability of the life insurance company you're considering working with should be a major consideration.<sup>12</sup>
